It is a hamentable fact, that from causes not generally understood, female suffering appears to be on the increase. The secol young zirl just entering womanhood good becomes pale, feeble, enactsted, lifelesse, with headache, pains and aphea, loss of appetite, paipitation of tife heart, cold feet and hands, and appear to lose that youthful vim and spightfulness to much admired. The middle aged matriced lady is no less exempt from these troublessome annoyances.
